PERSONAL CONSTRUCT PSYCHOLOGY FOR COACHING

The programme will explore coaching from the perspective of PCP theory, philosophy, skills, and methods. This programme will situate our understanding and practice of PCP in the coaching relationship, fine-tuning our skills, and enabling us to work creatively with development and change in working life and relationships. Participants should have at least an introductory knowledge of Personal Construct Psychology (PCP) (e.g. a foundation course, or regular attendance at PCP study days). The programme is a series of four one-day workshops with guided reading.
